

Guidance for Pet Owners

Both people and animals can be affected by glycidyl methacrylate (GMA).

Monitor your pet for respiratory signs like wheezing, difficult breathing, coughing, and sneezing, and eye irritation. Animals with underlying respiratory, cardiovascular, or eye conditions, and birds, may be more sensitive and should be watched closely. If any of your animals are experiencing any of these signs, consult your veterinarian:

- Coughing or gagging.
- Difficulty breathing, including open-mouth breathing and increased noise when breathing.
- Eye irritation and excessive watering or redness.
- Nasal discharge.
- Asthma-like symptoms.
- Fatigue or weakness.
- Disorientation and stumbling.
- Vomiting.
- Reduced appetite and thirst.

If you are in the shelter-in-place zone, keep your pets indoors as much as possible and keep your windows shut. Let your dogs and cats outside only for brief bathroom breaks if shelter-in-place and air quality alerts are in place. Outdoor pets should be brought indoors, if possible. Provide plenty of fresh water at all times.

If your pet becomes sick or if you have additional concerns about your pet, contact your veterinarian. If you do not have a veterinarian, a list of accredited veterinarians in the area is available.
